
Who we are

Sociologists for Women in Society is an international organization of social scientists. Members include undergraduate and graduate students, university and college faculty, researchers in business and government, freelance writers, and journalists. SWS members share expertise and dedication to attaining social equality for women and minorities. SWS - South serves the same purposes as, and works in liaison with, the national SWS in a more close-knit, regional community.

What we do

- Some of the valuable resources and opportunities offered by SWS – South:
- Listserv, with regional job postings, pedagogical discussions, research opportunities, and career advice
 - Biannual newsletter
 - Annual meeting conveniently held during the Southern Sociological Society annual meeting
 - SWS-SSS co-sponsored paper, panel, and roundtable sessions at annual meetings
 - Opportunities for leadership and service
 - Annual silent auction benefiting the SWS-South Advancing Gender Scholarship Award
 - Access to detailed SWS fact sheets on a variety of social issues
